F3Q Review: Noisy Quarter and Outlook with cRPO Accounting; However, Limited Changes in Underlying Momentum with Potential Upside from Acceleration in AI Monetization

ServiceNow's results and outlook were altogether a bit noisy, coming across as unconvincing to investors around the continued momentum in the business, although a large part of the challenges around the outlook stem from changes in scope for a cRPO metric which is not likely to remain as highly correlated to Subscription revenue growth in the coming quarters as it has been historically. In continued evidence of underlying momentum in the business, 1) half of the beat in the quarter (cRPO tracking 21% vs. guidance of ~20%) was led by outperformance while the other half was helped by early renewals; 2) AI ACV momentum continued to build with the updated target raised by $200M for year-end FY26 to now track to $1.7B vs. $1.5B; 3) number of $5M+ customers expanded to 680 vs. 658 in 2Q and 553 in 3Q last year; and 4) Average ACV of $5M+ ACV customers tracking to $15.4M, progressing from $15.2M in 2Q and $14.6M in 3Q25. Despite the robust progress already, the company is opting to support customers with high-value use cases for AI solutions with professional services, shifting revenues from Subscription revenues to Services revenues, even though the revenue capture remains unchanged and the acceleration of customers' AI-related consumption following the Professional Services support is already providing evidence of tailwinds to the longer-term Subscription revenue growth expectations from the investments in the near-term. With the company guiding to a deceleration in cRPO growth into F4Q and an incremental headwind into FY27, we believe the implied low-20% y/y revenue growth rate for F4Q and preliminary estimate for around 19% growth for FY27 (prior to embedding the acceleration in AI adoption into our estimates) still outlines a robust underlying business with room for upside led by performance, despite the concerns investors might express on a slowdown in the cRPO metric which is largely on account of revenue drivers moving out of scope of cRPO to a modest extent on a temporary basis. The investments in Professional Services are expected to be temporary with automation of processes in time for future customers, and we see the divergence between cRPO and Revenue growth reversing in time, with the opportunity for acceleration in the implementation of high-value AI use cases as an upside driver not captured in our forecasts. We are tweaking our model following the results, but our favorable view on the underlying momentum is largely unchanged, and we are raising our Dec-27 price target as a higher valuation multiple appears more sustainable on the visibility into drivers for robust growth in the out-year even before factoring in a potential acceleration of AI monetization; reiterate OW.

- 3Q26 (Sep-end) Results: Modest 3Q revenue beat and expense discipline supported operating margin strength despite gross margin pressures. Total revenue increased 20.5% y/y to $4.11B (vs. JPMe of $4.09B and consensus of $4.1B), including subscription revenue of $3.99B, up 20.9% y/y (vs. JPMe of $3.98B, consensus of $3.98B, and guidance of $3.975-3.980B); subscription growth in CC of 20.5% was above JPMe of 20.1% and the 20% guide, but slightly below consensus of 20.6%. cRPO tracked to $13.65B (vs. JPMe of $13.56B and consensus of $13.61B), with +21% CC growth vs. JPMe

Summary Investment Thesis and Valuation

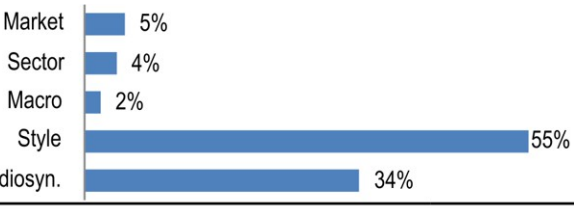

Investment Thesis

We rate ServiceNow Overweight as we view the company as the system of action for enterprise workflows, wherein its platform combines the data, workflow execution, permissions and governance that AI agents require to operate inside the enterprise, positioning ServiceNow to benefit from the adoption of agentic AI rather than be disintermediated by it. Beyond its leadership position in IT Service Management, the company has built multiple growth engines across customer service and CRM, security and risk, and data and analytics, which we expect to sustain above-peer growth at scale as the core IT franchise matures. At the same time, the evolution of pricing from seats toward a hybrid model with consumption meters provides an incremental monetization lever, as AI usage and third-party agent activity on the platform translate into revenue independent of seat counts. Combined with a track record of operating leverage and strong free cash flow generation, we believe ServiceNow offers a combination of growth and profitability at scale in software, which should support a premium multiple relative to application software peers.

Valuation

Our Dec-27 PT of $160 is based on ~18x EV/uFCF, which is derived from our CY28 uFCF estimate of $8.6B for ServiceNow.

of +19.8% y/y and consensus and guidance of +20% y/y; total RPO was $29.7B vs. consensus of $29.3B. PF total gross margin of 77.5% missed JPMe of 78.3% and consensus of 78.8%, while PF operating margin of 32.5% exceeded JPMe and guidance of 31% and consensus of 31.2%; management attributed the op margin upside to revenue outperformance, efficiency gains, and timing of spend. The company disclosed a roughly 25bps shift in subscription growth to professional services from deployment support. On the free cash flow front, PF FCF tracked to $822M, below JPMe of $1.01B and consensus of $923M.

- 4Q26 (Dec-end) Guide: Backlog growth and operating margin fall short of expectations despite subscription dollars tracking slightly above estimates. Subscription revenue is guided to a midpoint of $4.25B, slightly above JPMe of $4.246B and consensus of $4.24B; CC subs revenue growth of 21.5% came in below consensus of 22% and 1pt below our 22.5% CC growth rate. The cRPO outlook of 18.5% y/y growth is below consensus of 19.4%; adjusting for the ~175bps contribution from Armis leaves ~16.8% organic cRPO growth in CC, although implied to be closer to 17.3% when accounting for the 50 bps headwind from revenue shift to Pro Services. The PF operating margin guide of 32.0% tracked below JPMe of 33.7% and consensus of 33.4%, with ~75bps of Armis dilution included in the guidance, likely on account of lower gross margins than we and consensus had presumed.
- FY26 (Dec-end) Guide: Modest subscription revenue raise and stronger cash flow outlook; 4Q headwinds limit the flow-through of the 3Q beat. Subscription revenue guidance increased to $15.785B at the midpoint (vs. JPMe of $15.77B, consensus of $15.76B, and prior midpoint guidance of $15.77B). CC subscription growth remains at 21% vs. our CC estimate of 20.9% and consensus of 21.8%, with Armis contributing ~125bps. Management said the raise passes through FX and half the 3Q revenue beat, to account for the offset from the larger revenue mix to Pro Services. PF subscription gross margin of 81% and operating margin of 31.5% are unchanged and in line with JPMe and consensus. FCF margin guide was increased to 36% (vs. JPMe of 34.9%, consensus of 34.6%, and prior guidance of 35%); management attributed the improvement in the FCF guidance to lower capex.
- Key modeling notes from the callback (please reach out for more detailed notes). Deployment/ Professional services carve-out of Subscription revenue goes dollar-for-dollar into Pro Services; in 3Q, ~25bps of Subscription revenue moved into Pro Services revenue, while in 4Q the expectation is ~50bps. The headwind to Subscription revenue growth in FY27 on account of the deployment/ Professional services carve-out dynamic could be close to 100 bps; the carve-out flows back into Subscription revenue upon renewal, which typically happens earlier than the ~3 year customer contracts as most customers renew early. Street consensus for seasonality of cRPO growth into 1Q is reasonable.

Valuation

Our Dec-27 PT of $160 is based on ~18x EV/uFCF, which is derived from our CY28 uFCF estimate of $8.6B for ServiceNow. The multiple we ascribe is at a premium to the comp set, which trades at a median of ~17x EV/CY27E uFCF. We believe ServiceNow should trade at a premium to the comp group given its higher CY27E growth profile (19% vs. 15% for peers) and better CY27E uFCF margin profile (37% vs. 27% for peers).

Risks to Rating and Price Target

- AI could disintermediate the workflow layer or compress the seat base faster than pricing adapts. If agents built on frontier models, or agent platforms from large vendors such as Microsoft, become the primary point of interaction and governance for enterprise work, value could migrate away from the workflow layer and leave ServiceNow as a system of record with weaker pricing power. At the same time, a significant portion of revenue remains tied to fulfiller seats, and should AI-driven automation reduce seat counts faster than consumption and AI-tier pricing can offset, both growth and the valuation multiple could come under pressure.
- Maturation of the core IT franchise and execution in newer markets. IT Service Management is ServiceNow's largest and most penetrated product, and the company's growth increasingly depends on newer workflows such as CRM, security and data, where it competes with well-resourced incumbents and relies in part on acquired businesses. Slower traction in these markets, integration challenges, or saturation in its largest accounts could make it difficult to offset maturing growth in IT.

- Deceleration in cRPO growth and macroeconomic sensitivity. Investors closely track cRPO growth as a leading indicator of future revenue. A deceleration, whether due to underlying demand or to FX, contract duration and the timing of large and public-sector deals, could provide a headwind for shares. As a premium-priced platform requiring a substantial investment of time and resources from customers, ServiceNow could also see elongated sales cycles in a weaker macroeconomic or IT-spending environment.

J.P. Morgan ratings or designations: OW = Overweight, N= Neutral, UW = Underweight, NR = Not Rated

Explanation of Equity Research Ratings, Designations and Analyst(s) Coverage Universe:
J.P. Morgan uses the following rating system: Overweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will outperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe); Neutral (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will perform in line with the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe); and Underweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe. NR is Not Rated. In this case, J.P. Morgan has removed the rating and, if applicable, the price target, for this stock because of either a lack of a sufficient fundamental basis or for legal, regulatory or policy reasons. The previous rating and, if applicable, the price target, no longer should be relied upon. An NR designation is not a recommendation or a rating. Some stocks under coverage have a rating but no price target; in these cases, we expect the stock will outperform/perform in line/underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe of the relevant duration of the region. In our Asia (ex-Australia and ex-India) and U.K. small- and mid-cap Equity Research, each stock's expected total return is compared to the expected total return of a benchmark country market index, not to those Research Analysts' coverage universe. If it does not appear in the Important Disclosures section of this report, the certifying Research Analyst's coverage universe can be found on J.P. Morgan's Research website, https://www.jpmorganmarkets.com.
